This privacy policy contains information regarding the processing of personal data that the User may provide to us when using the website and the use of cookies on our website. Our goal is to protect your personal data on the Internet. We make every effort to protect the User's privacy when using the website.

Cookies

In connection with the User's use of the website. The Administrator collects his data to the extent necessary to provide the individual services offered, as well as information about the User's activity on the website, including device IP, device data, online identifier, geolocation data and information collected via cookies and other similar technologies. Cookies and similar technologies do not serve to identify the User and the User's identity is not established on their basis. Cookies and similar technologies, when they do not allow the identification of a natural person on their own, may constitute personal data only when combined with other unique identifiers or other information enabling the identification of that natural person.

COOKIES AND SIMILAR TECHNOLOGIES

1. Cookies are small text files saved on the User's end device (computer, telephone, tablet, etc.) while using the website, allowing for saving and reading information that the Administrator and other entities providing services to the User (e.g. analytical and statistical) may be used for various purposes.

2. Technologies similar to cookies include: local storage, session storage, and service workers, which operate as follows: technology that uses a separate part of the browser's memory used to store data saved by the website.

3. For simplicity, cookies and similar technologies will be collectively referred to as "cookies".

4. In connection with the use of the website, cookies are used to provide the User with access to the website, improve its operation, profile and display content tailored to the User's needs.

5. We use two types of cookies, depending on their lifespan:

5.1. session - files stored on the User's device until the User logs out or leaves the website;

5.2. permanent - files stored on the User's device until they are deleted by the User or until the cookie file expires within the period specified in the cookie file specification.

6. The Administrator and other entities providing services to him (e.g. analytical and statistical) may use cookies for various purposes, which can be divided into the following categories:

6.1. Required cookies necessary to use the website:

a) cookies with data entered by the User (session identifier) for the duration of the session (user input cookies),

b) authentication cookies used for services requiring authentication for the duration of the session (authentication cookies),

c) cookies used to ensure security, e.g. used to detect authentication abuses (user centric security cookies),

d) multimedia player session cookies (e.g. flash player cookies), for the duration of the session (multimedia player session cookies),

6.2. Functional cookies that facilitate the use of the website:

a) persistent cookies used to personalize the User's interface for the duration of the session or slightly longer (user interface customization cookies),

b) cookies used to monitor traffic on the website, i.e. data analytics - these are files used to analyze how the User uses the website, to create statistics and reports on the functioning of the website.

7. The User may change the settings of cookies or similar technologies at any time by changing the privacy settings in the browser, provided that this change may result in the lack of access to some functions of the website.

8. You can change your privacy settings by selecting the appropriate option in your browser settings. In the case of the most popular web browsers, the User can independently manage privacy settings, including cookies, in particular by accepting cookies, changing cookie settings and blocking or deleting cookies. The method and scope of changing privacy settings depends on the type or version of the browser. Detailed information on changing privacy settings is available on the websites of these providers.
